

S&P Global Provides Complimentary Access of Foresight Security to Charities Operating in Ukraine and Eastern Europe to Support Humanitarian Efforts

NEW YORK, March 28, 2022 /PRNewswire/ -- To aid in the support of charities operating in Ukraine and Eastern Europe, S&P Global Market Intelligence is offering complimentary access to Foresight Security planning capabilities to organizations operating in the region. Select humanitarian aid organizations will have access to location-specific security and intelligence information, enabling the organizations to monitor the rapidly changing operational environment to assist in their efforts.

Foresight Security ("Services") assesses, forecasts and scores security risk at the most granular level across 211 countries and territories, provides up-to-date analysis of the current operational environment and forecasts potential changes to the security environment. It provides data and insight enabling a user to monitor risk exposures, understand security threat environments, anticipate change and monitor the potential impact of events as they happen.
